Uhhhhhhhgh. The Walrus and The Eggman stole the concept of Christmas. Strawberry and her team-up partner Ultracow are trying to stop him. Now sod off. I'm trying to catch up on my Kamen Rider Fourze watching.

-Sal the Recap Guy

ALRIGHT, THE WALRUS, WHY'D YOU STEAL CHRISTMAS?
CHRISTMAS? I HAVE NO CHRISTMAS!
HAVE YOU EVER HEARD SUCH A SILLY THING, THE EGGMAN?
YOU'RE SITTING ON IT.
NO I'M NOT!
RIGHT, GOT ME THERE.
IF YOU TOTALLY DON'T HAVE IT, YOU WON'T

MIND IF WE TAKE IT BACK.
CHRISTMAS

PROBABLY SHOULD'VE USED YOUR ACTUAL HAND TO GRAB THAT, ULTRA C.
YOU DON'T UNDERSTAND! I NEED IT!!
SWIPE

UNHAND THAT HOLIDAY! ...OR... UNFLIPPER IT.
WHA'EFFER YOU THAY!

...UNMOUTH IT?
AS... YOU... WISSSHHHH

UM...

Ok, so it's getting pretty important for me to do these recaps because this is like, the longest storyline ever for some reason. Anyway, Strawberry was pretty bummed when she finally went on a date with whatshisface and it went poorly. Her followup crappy teenage mood was only worsened by being forced to do a superhero (?) teamup with little miss perfect herself, Ultracow. While searching for the stolen concept of Christmas, the two have done some bonding and whatever. Unfortunately, thief at hand, The Walrus has just swallowed the concept of Christmas, so things are about to get weird(er). I'm gonna go pretend I'm one of the Akibarangers and not a minimum wage recap guy.

Geez didn't I just do this a week ago? Ok, uhhh, Strawberry had a crap date, it made her fussy, she endured a competant team up partner disdainfully until they got along better. Meanwhile, The Walrus stole the idea of Christmas. Strawbs and Ultracow approached him in his apartment and he swallowed Christmas. It made him into a Christmas monster thing and destroyed the Crapartment building. January O'Kaye lived there. It's sad. Maybe she can move in with ME, know'm sayn'? The Walrus has an egg friend. It might cause a Beatles reference, maybe. Oy.

Ok, this is getting really convoluted, so I'll just give you the basics you need to know for this particular comic, but really, just go back to the beginning of the story. Or really the comic at all. In fact, have all a'yall read the backlog? If you all did, my job would be all the more unnecessary, and maybe I could go out and get a real job. You all are enabling me, really.

Anyway: Strawberry is currently in the middle of a super action teamup with the very capable Ultracow. It's their mission to retrieve the stolen concept of Christmas. I'm sure the fact that all this has been Christmas themed hasn't been hurting our readership at all. Anyway, The Walrus who appears to be taking orders from The Eggman, has eaten Christmas and become a giant Christmas-themed monster.

Strawberry and her action team-up partner Ultracow are currently fighting The Walrus and The Eggman. The villains have stolen the concept of Christmas, and The Walrus has even swallowed it and has become a giant Christmas monster. Since The Walrus gets his orders from The Eggman, Strawberry is trying to retrieve the silent mastermind.

This is the longest storyline we've ever had, and there are still several strips left before it's through. As a reader, I'm fine with that. As a recap guy, it's really tiresome. Wickle notwithstanding, does anyone happen to know what the longest-running story in Dumm Comics history is? No prizes or anything, especially as I don't know, but I'm curious in case any of you happen to feel like doing some reasearch.

I got in trouble for making a typo last week, so I'm in a terrible mood. All you need to know for this comic is that Strawberry and her superhero team-up partner Ultracow are trying to get the concept of Christmas back from The Walrus and The Eggman. The Walrus ate the concept of Christmas and became a giant Christmas monster. Since they don't have a mecha, Ultracow shot Strawberry towards The Eggman with her arm cannon. She caught him, but then started falling to her death.

If you people think I'm showing up the week Kid Icarus Uprising comes out, you've got another thing coming.

I got in trouble for skipping last week, so I'm just gonna play it straight today.

Strawberry and Ultracow are currently trying to get the concept of Christmas back from The Walrus and The Eggman. That particular pursuit took a turn for the kaiju when The Walrus ate the concept of Christmas and became a giant Christmas beast. Strawberry and Ultracow were about to thwart him with a vomit-inducing corporate pizza, when they were hero-blocked by Lemonade. Friggin' Lemonade.

Strawberry was forced into a superhero team-up by her manager, Horatio Porque. Said superhero team-up is with Ultracow, a very capable cowborg. They're trying to retrieve the pilfered concept of Christmas from The Walrus and The Eggman. It had all been going quite well until Lemonade came in out of nowhere and used a pineapple bomb to defeat them.

We're almost to the close of this story, I'm told. It'll be nice for my job to be a little less necessary. It'll also be nice not thinking about Christmas in the spring. I mean, I realize that's the joke, but my GAWD, it makes me uncomfortable.

Ok, this is the last strip of this story line, so let's make this count. Strawberry went on a date with a sensitive musician named Josh after a long, long buildup. It didn't go well, leaving Strawberry in a cranky, frustrated state. She was only made more cranky by being forced into a superhero team up by her manager, Horatio Porque. The very-capable Ultracow initially added insult to injury, but over time, she and Strawberry bonded. The two have been on a mission to retrieve the concept of Christmas from The Walrus and The Eggman. The Walrus swallowed Christmas and became gigantic and... festive. Strawberry and Ultracow were about to wrap this thing up, when they were suddenly usurped by the lovely-but-infuriating Lemonade.
On the plus side, The Walrus and Eggman were taken down and Christmas was saved or whatever. On the negativo, Horatio now seems interested in being Lemonade's manager. Gross.

Akibaranger rules. I knew it would.
